This trip was pretty spur of the moment. We didn't even decide on a destination until a couple days before we left. Have stoke will travel. This was the vibe on the whole trip. Skating through the street's, not having a clue where we are heading. Running into spots left and right. Who did what here? Oh THIS spot. That's just New York I guess.

True to the nature of the trip. On our last night, while walking around, we came across this skatepark only a block away from our hostel in New Jersey. We were stoked. It has a 6 foot mini and a street course. Not the best but we'll take it. Made the last morning that much better. Breakfast sesh and we were gone. Thanks for havin us!
